Enrique Iglesias; is a Spanish singer-songwriter, record producer, and actor. Born in Madrid, Spain in 1975, Enrique is the son of popular Spanish singer Julio Iglesias. Enrique started his career in the mid-1990s on the American Spanish language record label Fonovisa. As the largest seller of Spanish-language albums of that decade, he soon became one of the biggest stars in Latin America and the Hispanic Market in the United States. His popularity continued to explode, and Enrique made a successful crossover into the mainstream market.

"For me, not only video, but when you write songs, when you're onstage, it's all about the vibe," Iglesias said in a CBS interview. "If you're not vibing and you're not feeling good, people notice that."

Grammy, Latin Grammy and multiple Billboard Music Award winner Enrique Iglesias, is one of the most successful Latin music and pop crossover artists of all time, with more than 100 million albums sold worldwide and 24 No. 1 Billboard "Hot Latin Songs" hits. His style continues to evolve, and bring him even greater success. Seeing an artist of his stature perform in an intimate setting can be a once in a lifetime occasion for fans.

Like his famous fragrance appropriately named, Adrenaline—with Iglesias on stage there will surely be a lot of it in the room! "There's no better place for me than being up on stage in front of
